

JEROME MAY PUT BUTLER ON TRIAL

District Attorney Points Out the Peculiar Features of the Charges Against Him and Detective-Sergeant Findlay.

It was reported in the Criminal Court Building to-day that charges would probably be preferred against Detective-Sergeant Thomas J. Butler and John Findlay, who were accused by C. S.

Cowenhoven and "Al" Voultaire of protecting them in various schemes of theft for money.

District Attorney Jerome, when asked point blank if he intended filing charges, refused to affirm or deny the report, but he talked as though some action would be taken shortly.

"I have been going over the evidence carefully," he said, "and I find a peculiar and interesting condition of affairs as brought out by the testimony of the detectives themselves. Here is a thief who goes to a detective and says, 'I have stolen a watch.' The detective takes the watch, but he does not make any report of the circumstance. Here is a man who goes to a detective and says, 'I have raised a check on the New Amsterdam Bank from $5 to $50.' Again the detective is informed that a crook is following a rich brewer with a view to robbing him.

"No word of warning to the bank or to the brewer is given; no report of these incidents is made to the detective's superiors. This is very strange. When the detectives are asked about it they say that they do not make a rule of reporting such things or warning persons in danger, because some other detective might step in and get all the glory. These men are not paid to get glory for themselves. They are paid to detect crime and catch criminals, and their excuse in this matter is, to say the least, most peculiar."

Subway Laborer Hurt.

In hoisting a huge timber out of the excavation for the subway on Centre street, Chambers street to-day the rope from the hoisting apparatus became tangled around the legs of Thomas McAlister, laborer, and dragged him off a platform. He fell a dozen feet striking his head against an iron bucket. He was painfully hurt.

THUG STABBED ACTOR IN HOLD-UP

Washington Drane Stopped on the Bowery and Slashed Because He Refused to Give Up His Money.

An extraordinary quiet which has pervaded the Bowery recently was disturbed early to-day by a hold-up and slaying. A man in a dark suit and a light-colored shirt, who was walking alone in the old-time fashion.

Washington Drane, an actor, living at No. 77 East Tenth street, was stabbed in the breast by an Italian and severely wounded.

Policeman Conklin, of the East Fifth street station, was standing at the corner of Tenth street and Third avenue about 1 o'clock when he saw Drane with George W. Ordwine, a companion, of the same address, walking uptown bleeding profusely and supported by his companion.

Ordwine said that he and Drane were on their way home when accosted by a man whom they took to be an Italian. He demanded money. They refused to give it to him, and the fellow whipped out a stiletto, stabbed Drane and then slashed him about the breast and then ran away.

Conklin called an ambulance and Surgeon McCarty, of Bellevue, responded. He dressed Drane's wounds and took him to his home in the ambulance.
